(3) Should the private entity or organisation mentioned in subsection (1) or (2) not commercialise the intellectual property in the Republic, the provisions of section 14 of this Act shall apply with the changes required by the context.

MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS FROM PUBLICLY FINANCED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BILL

1. BACKGROUND

The Intellectual Property Rights from Publicly Financed Research and Development Bill (“the Bill”) came as a result of a need for the creation of a proper framework and enabling legislation for the effective management of intellectual property arising from publicly financed research. The Intellectual Property Rights from Publicly Financed Research Policy was approved by Cabinet during February 2006 for public comment. In May 2007, Cabinet gave final approval of the Policy Framework and also approved that the draft Bill be gazetted for public comment.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

The Bill seeks to provide for the effective utilisation of intellectual property derived from publicly financed research and development. In order to achieve this, the Bill provides for the following:

- (f) The establishment of a requirement that small enterprises and Broad-Based Black Economic Empowerment entities receive preference in respect of transactions involving intellectual property derived from publicly financed research.
- (g) The establishment of a requirement for preference for commercialisation of intellectual property derived from publicly financed research in the Republic, including regulating commercialisation of such intellectual property outside the Republic.
- (h) The establishment of the criteria under which intellectual property derived from research that is partially publicly financed can be managed and commercialised.
- (i) The creation of an office function in respect of intellectual property rights from publicly financed research and development, under the Department of Science and Technology, to be called the National Intellectual Property Management Office (NIPMO).
- (j) NIPMO’s main functions will be to—
 - (i) record declarations of intellectual property by recipients of public funds for research and development;

 - (iii) assist institutions in establishing institutional arrangements;

5. Financial Implications

- 5.1 Intellectual Property Fund: The Bill requires that institutions protect intellectual property emanating from publicly financed research and development. In this regard, there will be costs associated with obtaining this protection. At present, the Patent Support Fund established by the Department of Science and Technology under its instrument, the Innovation Fund, provides subsidies to institutions for this purpose. The Patent Support Fund will form the basis of the dedicated fund as proposed in the Bill. It is envisaged that with the enactment of the Bill, there will in time be increased patenting activities and thus there will be a need to adequately capitalise this fund.

5.2 Institutional Arrangements and Capacity Development:

5.2.1 NIPMO will need to assist institutions in developing appropriate capacities to effectively manage and commercialise intellectual property developed with public funds. In the first instance, there will be harmonisation of existing capacity development initiatives in this area.

5.2.2 In addition, the establishment of capacity for NIPMO will also require additional funding.

5.2.3 Some support with the establishment of intellectual property management offices in the form of designated Offices of Technology Transfer at some institutions will need to be provided by NIPMO, on a case by case basis, based on intensity of research activity and national interest.

5.3 An initial budget of R90 million over a three year period is estimated for the activities set out in 5.1 and 5.2 above.

6. Parliamentary procedure

The State Law Advisers and the Department of Science and Technology are of the view that this Bill must be dealt with in accordance with the procedure established by section 75 of the Constitution, since it contains no provisions to which the procedure set out in section 74 or 76 of the Constitution applies. The State Law Advisers are of the opinion that it is not necessary to refer the Bill to the National House of Traditional Leaders in terms of section 18(1)(a) of the Traditional Leadership and Governance Framework Act, 2003 (Act No. 41 of 2003), since it does not contain provisions relating to customary law or customs of traditional communities.

Mine Health and Safety Council (the Council)

Invitation to submit project proposals

SIMRAC, a permanent committee of the Mine Health and Safety Council, was established in terms of the Mine Health and Safety Act (29/1996) to conduct research and surveys regarding, and for the promotion of, health and safety in the South African mining industry. Suitably qualified agencies and/or persons are invited to submit proposals in response to the project specifications in this Notice. In soliciting research projects for the 2008/2009 research programme, the Council has the following goals:

- to indicate the current research needs for research to commence in the 2008/2009 cycle;
- to invite research proposals in response to these defined priority areas of research; and
- to invite applications for postgraduate funding[□] for research which will promote health and safety within the South African mining industry.

A consultative process has resulted in the Council formulating a co-ordinated, long-term health and safety research programme and identifying priority areas for research to commence in the 2008/2009 cycle. Researchers and agencies are invited to submit research proposals for the research projects indicated. The objectives of the Council in commissioning health and safety research, for both general and commodity-based projects, are to:

- Obtain and evaluate information to establish evidence-based risk assessment, standard setting and health and safety performance measurement;
- Develop techniques or guidelines to prevent, reduce, control or eliminate risks;
- Develop and pilot innovative ideas and procedures, where appropriate, to eliminate, reduce or control risk;

- Obtain information on the extent of work-related ill health;
- Identify, develop and improve sampling and measurement techniques to detect environmental hazards and assess personal exposure;
- Understand the aetiology and identify and evaluate best-practice screening, diagnostic and treatment interventions to reduce the impact of occupational disease;
- Evaluate the effectiveness of control interventions;
- Understand risk perception, attitudes and behaviour related to health and safety and promote best practices in hazard recognition and procedural conformance;
- Empower its statutory committees to formulate policy, expedite research aimed at improving the health and safety in the South African mining industry; and
- Collaborate with national and international initiatives and research to promote health and safety in the mining industry.

The criteria by which proposals will be evaluated include:

- Added value and impact – the Council supports research which can contribute significantly to the improvement in the health and safety of South African miners;
- Value for money – the Council supports cost-effective research;
- Innovation – the Council welcomes new approaches or new areas of focus for research leading to technologies or best practices to improve health and safety;
- Excellence – the Council demands excellence, particularly in the methods employed to conduct research, be it quantitative or qualitative, and hence will consider the track record of the proposer/s for expertise and delivery (quality, time and to budget);
- Use and development of research skills – the Council requires research teams to possess the skills relevant to the success of the project and also favours projects which assist in developing research capacity, particularly in previously disadvantaged groups;
- Collaboration - the Council places a high priority on collaboration between researchers and the "teams of excellence" approach. Thus, the means of soliciting research proposals is intended to stimulate collaboration between centres of excellence and individual experts in order to optimise the use of the Council funding and the research outcomes.
- Development of key indicators – the Council recognises the challenge in assessing performance and improvement in health, as opposed to safety, in the mining industry. There is a lack of suitable occupational health (OH) indicators and baseline data. Thus innovative and robust research to develop relevant OH indicators and baseline values will be favourably considered.

The Council's research and implementation programme consists of occupational health and safety, addresses occupational medicine and hygiene, rock engineering, engineering and machinery, behavioural issues and technology transfer processes.

Each proposal must:

- Address only the research topic advertised and this must be specified;
- Be in the format indicated and the template specified using Word format; and
- Be phased as indicated in the project scope.

Thrust 8:

Title: SIM 08 08 XX: Development of the best practice document on measurement and management standards on whole body vibration and hand arm vibration in the South African mining industry.

Motivation

Mining involves usage of heavy machinery that can result to vibration and shocks, and the South African mining industry is not unique in having to manage these challenges. Health 703 provided guidelines for seat selection for whole body vibration control in industrial settings. Despite the complexity and ambiguity of standards, Whole-body vibration (WBV) can be managed. SIMRAC researchers (GEN 503) measured the vibration emitted by various types of hand held tools and machinery in the mining industry and concurred with a COMRO report (433 of 1987) in recommending a survey to establish the prevalence of HAVS in the mining industry. SIMRAC researchers (Health 703) are currently investigating the presence and prevalence of HAVS in gold miners. Theoretically, using a rock drill, pavement breaker or jackhammer for four hours a day would cause 50% of the machine tool operators to develop symptoms of HAVS within five years (GEN 503). It is estimated the hands of drill operators may only be in full contact with a vibrating drill for as little as two hours a day. At such an exposure level, 50% of the machine tool operators would be expected to have symptoms of HAVS within nine years.

Statement

Whole-body vibration (WBV) is experienced through standing or sitting on a vibrating surface which causes the whole body to vibrate. The most common exposure is through driving or riding vehicles. Many vehicles and types of equipment such as trucks, loaders, dumpers, locomotives, shuttle cars and draglines are in use in the mining industry and operators of such equipment are exposed to whole-body vibration. An ISO-standard for the measurement and evaluation of WBV was published in 1993 as ISO 2631. The South African National Standards (SANS), previously known as the South African Bureau of Standards (SABS), has adopted ISO 2631 as SANS 2631-1 as the standard for measuring whole body vibration. There are currently no South African standards governing exposure limits to WBV and there is no defined limit for vibration for vehicle operators. WBV is not specifically mentioned in the COID Act (Act 130 of 1993). As a safety precaution, no instruments or equipment are allowed in a fiery mine that is not intrinsically safe (IS) and suitable to the South African mining industry, which would include instruments for measuring whole-body vibration levels.

HAVS has been described in several countries in a variety of industries, including mining and quarrying, where vibrating, hand held, power tools are used. There is wide spread use of pneumatic power tools in the mining industry. Depending on the level of vibration transmitted to the hands operators of the equipment may suffer various ailments of the hands and arms. However, to date, the syndrome has not been diagnosed nor reported in a South African mine worker. HAVS is classified as one of the compensable disease in SA according to (COID).

Vibration levels for various vehicles from several studies, however, most values do not take into account the maintenance levels, age of the machinery/vehicle and other contributing factors, rendering standards development more complex.

ScopePhase 1

- Systematic review of available literature locally and internationally including relevant completed SIMRAC work on WBV and HAV.
- Review and critically analyse available intrinsically safe measuring instruments, measuring procedures, and OELs and exposure control measures suitable for South African Mining industry.
